

Personal Web Site Plan

Purpose:

A website for my friend's wedding including a countdown to the big event.

Audience:

There will be no need for any Invitation card to be sent for the marriage. All the friends and family of the groom and bridegroom will be notified about the website through e-mail or through social network websites. So, the website is intended for all the friends and family of the groom and bridegroom or to the people who needs to know about my friend's wedding.

Description:

As blue represents boy thing and pink represents girl thing, I would like both of those colors to be applied onto the site. I am planning to use graphics for the countdown to the big event and an animation for playing a gallery of their images as a slideshow.

Plan:

The website may not contain any external links nor internal links. There will be only tabs which will be covering all the facts about their marriage including their love story, photos of them, details about the big day and also a home page with the countdown to the big event. The invitation too can be posted in the website. There can be a tab for friends living abroad to e-bless the pair, a tab including a map to get into the event's location. People can request a song through the site which will be played in the wedding. There will be FAQ tab too regarding the event and of course a credit section for me.

Content Summary:

Home page: A graphics with the countdown to the big event and an image\animation below that welcoming all the guests.

Our Story: This page includes their love story and may be cute little animation\gif pictures of two animation\fictional characters below the story.

The Big Day: An image saying that they are going to get married and may also contain the invitation of their marriage.

Photos: An animation which will play a gallery of photos of both the bride and groom.

FAQ: A page with little animations like question mark, and answering the FAQ about the big event like the event's location.

I am also planning for four more tabs for e-blessing, a map for getting there to the event, requesting a song and a credit section.